ORDER

11 vs.)

12 Southwest Gas Corporation,)

13 Defendant.)
15 _____)

16 Pending before the Court is Southwest Gas Corporation's Motion to Dismiss First
17 Amended Complaint (Doc. 24). Plaintiff has filed his Response to the Motion to Dismiss 18 (Doc. 27) and Defendant has filed its Reply in Support of its Motion to Dismiss (Doc. 28).
19 For the reasons that follow, Defendant's Motion to Dismiss is denied.

20 I. BACKGROUND

21 In his Complaint, Plaintiff alleges that, on October 21, 2008, Southwest Gas
22 Corporation blocked off his house and would not let him enter because of the danger of a gas
23 leak. (Doc. 18 at ¶ 5). Plaintiff alleges that, for several months preceding the discovery of 24 the gas leak, he had been suffering health problems, including uncontrollable coughing
25 spasms, floaters broken loose in his eyes, numbness in his ring and pinky fingers on both 26 hands, involuntary nervous ticks in both index fingers, pain in the left side of his neck and 27 then his right side, very little sleep every night secondary to coughing persistently throughout 28 the night, the mucus membranes in his nose and sinuses becoming swollen and dry, nasal and

1 eye drainage, and poor appetite and weight loss. (Id. at ¶¶ 10 & 16). Plaintiff alleges that,
2 for several months preceding the discovery of the gas leak, the vegetation surrounding his
3 home died and that when Plaintiff replaced this vegetation, it again died. (Id. at ¶ 9).
4 Plaintiff alleges that the gas leak was the source of harm that caused his injuries and caused
5 his vegetation to die. (Id. at ¶¶ 8, 10, 11, 16). Plaintiff further alleges that Defendant was
6 engaged in an abnormally dangerous activity that caused his injuries. (Id. at 14).¹

7 Defendant argues that Plaintiff has failed to state a claim upon which relief can be
8 granted as required by Federal Rules of Civil Procedure 12(b)(6) and 8(a) because Plaintiff
9 has failed to allege sufficient facts to support a causal connection between the alleged gas
10 leak and Plaintiff’s alleged injuries. (Doc. 24 at 4-5).

11 II. LEGAL STANDARD

12 The Federal Rules of Civil Procedure embrace a notice-pleading standard. All that 13 is required to survive a Rule 12(b)(6) motion is “a short and plain statement of the claim
14 showing that the pleader is entitled to relief,” Fed. R. Civ. P. 8(a)(2), in order to ““give the 15 defendant fair notice of what the . . . claim is and the grounds upon which it rests.”” Bell Atl.
16 Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 555 (2007) (quoting Conley v. Gibson, 355 U.S. 41, 47
17 (1957)). In pleading the grounds of the claim, the plaintiff need not provide “detailed factual
18 allegations,” id.; however, the plaintiff must plead enough facts “to raise a right to relief
19 above the speculative level.” Id. at 1965. This does “not impose a probability requirement
20 at the pleading stage.” Id. at 556.

21 “[W]hen a complaint adequately states a claim, it may not be dismissed based on a 22 district court’s assessment that the plaintiff will fail to find evidentiary support for his 23 allegations or prove his claim to the satisfaction of the factfinder.” Id. at 563. Further, when

24
25 ¹ In response, Defendant argues that Plaintiff’s strict liability claim fails because, as 26 a matter of law, the transmission of natural gas is not an abnormally dangerous activity. (Id.
27 at 5-6). During oral argument on Defendant’s Motion to Dismiss, Plaintiff withdrew his 28 strict liability claim and, accordingly, the Court dismissed Plaintiff’s strict liability argument.

analyzing a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim, the court must construe the complaint in the light most favorable to the plaintiff, accept its factual allegations as true, and draw all reasonable inferences in favor of the plaintiff. See Assoc. for Los Angeles Deputy Sheriffs v. County of Los Angeles, 648 F.3d 986 (9th Cir. 2011).

III. ANALYSIS

Defendant argues that Plaintiff has failed to sufficiently allege a causal connection between the gas leak and Plaintiff's injuries. Defendant claims that Plaintiff failed to "allege that natural gas can cause the types of injuries Plaintiff claims to have suffered or that it did cause those alleged injuries in this case. (Doc. 28 at 4) (emphasis in original). Defendant further claims that Plaintiff never alleged "how the natural gas, or a constituent of natural gas, came into contact with the Plaintiff himself, how that contact was sufficient or capable of causing any personal health problems generally, and how such caused those problems specifically in the Plaintiff." (Id.). Defendant argues that Plaintiff's failure to make these allegations requires speculation, rendering the allegations insufficient to satisfy Federal Rules of Civil Procedure 8(a).

In his Complaint, Plaintiff alleged that Defendant's negligence caused a gas leak, that the gas leak caused Defendant to block off Plaintiff's house for a period of time due to "danger of gas within the dwelling," and that Plaintiff sustained specific injuries from his exposure to the gas leak. Assuming these facts are true, Plaintiff has adequately stated a claim upon which relief can be granted. Defendant's argument suggests that it believes Plaintiff is required to prove causation in his Complaint. However, Federal Rules of Civil Procedure 8(a) does not require Plaintiff to prove his claim in the Complaint, nor does it impose "a probability requirement at the pleading stage; it simply calls for [plaintiff to allege] enough fact[s] to raise a reasonable expectation that discovery will reveal evidence to support the allegations." Starr v. Baca, 652 F.3d 1202, 1217 (9th Cir. 2011) (quoting Twombly, 550 U.S. at 556). In his Complaint, Plaintiff does allege facts that could be proved by evidence obtained through the discovery process, i.e. that Defendant's negligence caused a gas leak and that, as a result, Plaintiff was exposed to and sustained injuries related to the leak.

1 Defendant argues that it is “illogical and unwarranted” to link Plaintiff’s injuries to
2 the gas leak because there are other “commonly-known possible causes of Plaintiff’s alleged
3 harm.” For instance, Defendant posits that Plaintiff’s coughing spasms could be caused by 4 “allergies, the inhalation of an irritant . . . or diseases such as influenza and respiratory
5 infection.” (Doc. 28 at 5). Defendant’s alternative explanations do not make Plaintiff’s
6 theory of the case any less plausible.

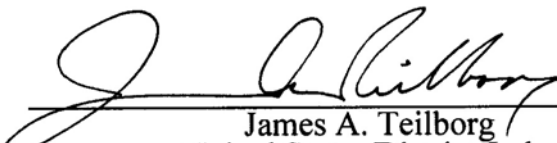

7 If there are two alternative explanations, one advanced by defendant and the 8 other advanced by plaintiff, both of which are plausible, plaintiff’s complaint
9 survives a motion to dismiss under Rule 12(b)(6). Plaintiff’s complaint may 10 be dismissed only when defendant’s plausible alternative explanation is so
11 convincing that plaintiff’s explanation is implausible. The standard at this 12 stage of the litigation is not that plaintiff’s explanation must be true or even
13 probable. The factual allegations of the complaint need only ‘plausibly
14 suggest an entitlement to relief.’
15 Starr, 652 F.3d at 1217 (quoting Twombly, 550 U.S. at 556) (emphasis in original).
16 Accordingly, the Court finds that Plaintiff has adequately pled causation as required by 17 Federal Rules of Civil Procedure 8(a).

18 Based on the foregoing,

19 IT IS ORDERED that Plaintiff’s strict liability claim is dismissed without prejudice.

20 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that, in all other respects, Southwest Gas
21 Corporation’s Motion to Dismiss First Amended Complaint (Doc. 24) is denied.
